1 Introduction

The Clipflair project aims at creating a library of resources containing over 300 activities for all CEFR levels of 15 languages, accompanied by corresponding lesson plans and relevant metadata.

An activity is considered a learning object consisting of:

- - clips (audio, video files)
- - instructions
- - other reference material (e.g. information about the clip)
- - pre- or post-activity exercises etc.

Captioning activities include

- standard (interlingual) subtitling,
- same-language subtitling
- annotations
- speech bubbles
- intertitles.

Revoicing includes

- dubbing,
- voice-over,
- free commentary,
- karaoke,
- audio description

The 15 languages targeted are Arabic, Basque, Catalan, Chinese, English, Estonian, Greek, Irish, Japanese, Polish, Portuguese, Romanian, Russian, Spanish, Ukrainian. Furthermore, Italian has been also been included as an additional language.

An Activity Profile Template (see section 3), filled by authors, accompanies each activity created and provides necessary metadata. The information required in the Template includes title, author(s) keywords, aims, estimated time for completion of tasks, language(s), suitability in relation to speakers of specific or any languages, CEFR level(s), skills, AV skills, type of response required of learners, AV tasks, mode of feedback to learners.

Activities consist of a number of components and include media files, instructions for the completion of requested tasks, captioning and/or revoicing panels and any additional text, image or media component deemed necessary by the author(s) (see screenshots in Appendix II). They are classified as:

- Intralingual: activities where the same language is both Source Language and Target Language;
- Interlingual: activities where Source Language and Target Language are different;
- Multilingual: activities which simultaneously present more than Source and/or Target Language.
- Combinations of the above are possible.

Whilst activities will help learners to enhance one or more of the four traditional language skills (listening, reading, speaking, writing), they also all aim to develop and/or enhance audiovisual (AV) competence and skills in language learners, with tasks specifically designed to target AV skills, which are defined as follows:

- AV Listening (listening to words in combination with nonverbal AV elements, sound or picture)
- AV Reading (reading words written on the screen, such as captions) to develop visual-verbal literacy
- Picture-literacy / Picture-reading (i.e. AV comprehension of nonverbal film images) to develop nonverbal visual literacy
- AV Watching (i.e. simultaneous combined 1, 2 and 3) to develop fully integrated AV literacy skills
- AV Speaking (i.e. REVOICING) to develop AV verbal literacy
- AV Writing (i.e. CAPTIONING) to develop visual verbal literacy

- Again, combinations of the above are possible.

It is considered that learners can be requested to provide one or more of three type of responses, which must be specified in the Activity Profile Template:

- Repeat (intralingual or interlingual repetition, synonym/paraphrase, e.g. literal translation);
- Rephrase (express the same idea in a different way, reword or adapt);
- React (a new contribution or new content expressed by learner).

Audiovisual tasks are divided into two broad categories: Captioning and Revoicing. All activities will include at least one AV task, as follows:

- Captioning: audio description, dubbing, free commentary, karaoke, voiceover;
- Revoicing: intertitles, multimodal writing, speech bubbles, subtitles.

Activities are also defined in terms of Learner type and target audience. Learners have been grouped in the following types:

- Teacher dependent: working with the constant and consistent presence of a teacher
- Guided: working within a structured framework, with some guidance but without the consistent presence of a teacher
- Independent: working without teacher or guidance.

Target audiences have been defined according to age, as follows:

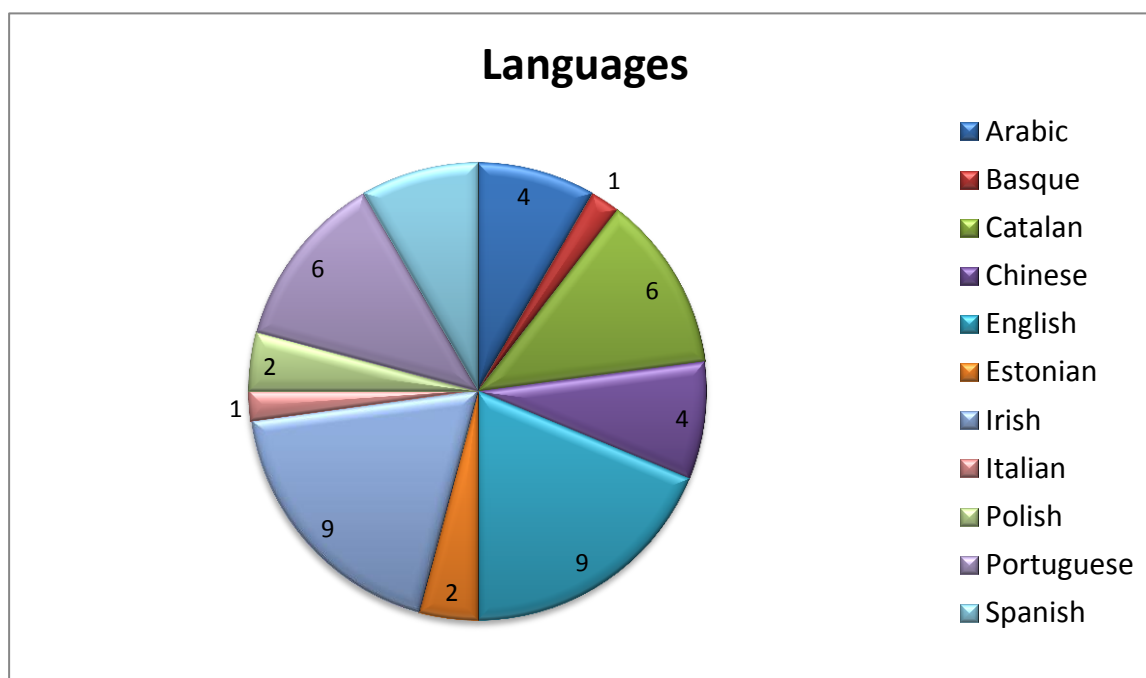

- < 13 years old
- 13-18 years old
- 18-35 years ols
- > 35 years old.

The present report provides a breakdown of 48 activities created up to 25th February 2013. These activities should be considered as work in progress: they have not been tested or peer reviewed yet and are therefore subject to change.

2 Activities up to 22nd February 2013

2.1 Languages being learnt

Activities created so far cover 11 languages, as shown in the following chart:

Chart 1: Languages

Of these activities, 38 are intralingual (79.17%) and 10 (20.83%) are interlingual. There are no multilingual activities at this stage.

2.2 Levels

Activities created show a fairly widespread distribution with regards to Levels of fluency (CEFR, 2001) and cater for the following levels:

| LEVEL | PERCENTAGE | NUMBER OF ACTIVITIES |
|-------|------------|----------------------|
| A1    | 25         | 12                   |
| A2    | 43.75      | 21                   |
| B1    | 56.25      | 27                   |
| B2    | 41.67      | 20                   |
| C1    | 31.25      | 15                   |
| C2    | 21.92      | 11                   |

Table 1 CEFR levels

The percentile refers to the number of activities for a given level in relation to the total number of activities (48). Activities may be considered suitable for more than one level.

2.3 Skills

When creating activities, Partners are asked to indicate the skills required to decode the input (SKILLS-FROM) and those required to perform the required tasks (SKILLS-TO).

As can be expected, FROM skills are mainly Reading and Listening:

| FROM:     |       |                |     |
|-----------|-------|----------------|-----|
| Answers   | Graph | %              | Sum |
| Listening |       | 87.5           | 42  |
| Reading   |       | 45.83          | 22  |
| Speaking  |       | 4.17           | 2   |
| Writing   |       | 4.17           | 2   |

2.3.1 Specific Audiovisual Skills

All Clipflair activities must contain at least one (often more) AV Skills. The distribution for the first 45 activities is as follows:

Table 4 Skills-TO

Chart 3: AV Skills

As more than one skill may be required to decode and/or to perform the necessary tasks, percentiles refer to the number of activities involving one specific skill in relation to the total number of activities created (48).

2.4 Types of responses

Activities are also classified according to the response they elicit from learners.

NOTE: Activities may elicit more than one response.

2.5 Tasks: Captioning and Revoicing

32 activities require learners to perform captioning tasks and 25 require revoicing tasks.

NOTE: Activities may require more than one task. More specifically:

Transcripción de los diálogos

Nada, no he dicho nada.
 ¿Tan poca confianza me tienes?
 ¡Habla!
 Pues se lo digo porque a mí no se me pudren las cosas en el cuerpo.
 ¿Es verdad que tiene usted un hijo?
 ¿Cómo lo sabes?
 Se lo oí decir a mi madre hace años.
 ¿Es verdad entonces?
 Sí, es cierto.
 Pero, ¿qué sabes tú de la vida?
 En fin, no puedes entender.
 Si que entiendo.
 Debía usted de recoger a este niño.
 La madre quiso guardarlo.
 Era una mujer de clase humilde.
 Yo estaba ya enamorado de tu tía y hubiera tenido que confesárselo.
 ¡Tami perderla.
 Por eso no le dije nada.
 ¿Y ese inocente?
 No te preocupes, que no quedará olvidado.
 Estoy seguro de que te parezca un monstruo.
 No, tío, pero da pena que la vida sea así.

Below it is a file explorer or timeline view showing subtitle files. On the right, a text document titled 'Activity description:' provides instructions for a subtitle activity. At the bottom center, there is a logo for 'clipfair'.

Activity description:

Create subtitles for this short film which contains no dialogue. Feel free to use your imagination!

When you've finished you can compare (just for fun) your script with:

- (a) peer work and suggestions for alternative scripts,
- (b) what the original script was (we provide it later).

Then you can answer the following questions:

1. - Were you surprised by the similarities / differences?
2. - Do you think different versions could work just as well for the same image?
3. - Rank the different versions, including your own, according to your preference etc.

The chief scope of the unit is to combine the use of audio-visual aids with a view to reinforcing knowledge of culture history, enhancing listening comprehension and oral proficiency in English, by building on a given cultural-historical background. Presenting the student with general historical fact and fictional material on dimensions of Scottish identity, we aim at ensuring a deeper insight into the elements of specificity that distinguish Scottishness from the composite British cultural identity. By combining text with the audio-book format, the unit seeks to ensure a deeper immersion in elements of Scottish culture history, enabling the student to focus on cultural references as well as language reception and verbal performance skills. By completing the unit, the student will enhance his/her verbal literacy, enrich his/her culture-specific vocabulary and become more knowledgeable in aspects of Scottish culture history, and religion.
